Sunday Evening. - 9¹⁵ PM
At Home. -

My dear darling Grace, -

Altho' I have just told you good night, this is for a sweet kiss after you have enjoyed a good day with Willoughby. -

Take it dear, as from the one here who is ever and always near you and from one whose life has had added Sunshine & a brilliancy which knows no clouds that can shadow its influence. -

You know how the stamer letters are enjoyed, you can also realize how "Sleepy" letters are too.

How, darling can you possibly be happy without the thought of the little verse;—

"The Lord Bless me and thee, while we are absent one from the other."

This is a simple one, but one you reminded me of and one which ever shall bind us together.
Yes;— I shall go over and have a chat with your Papa Tuesday night to learn as to your telegram. Those evening chats with him will do me great good I am sure, oh how we can feast for hours and days and weeks to come, on the memories of this Fall and grand good vacation week.

I shall also cheer Laura Burr by an occasional, "Drop in",— but Leicester will no doubt keep her busy sewing shirt bands, but now another, Goodnight for Monday night, as you leave Toledo and go speeding on your way. — "Peace be with you".
Your own, Claire.
